Clinics - Locations

Please visit our website www.BreastHealthUK.com/clinics for an up to date list of clinic locations and directions.

No breast screening test, including mammography, will pick up all breast cancers. If your screening tests are abnormal you will be eligible for referral to an NHS clinic via your GP if the abnormality is detected by breast examination or mammography but not if the infrared scan is the only abnormal test. In this case, your breast surgeon will be happy to discuss the choices available to you. BreastHealth UK offer the best clinical diagnostic services available. BreastCheck is available to men and women.

BreastCheck

BreastCheck

Have you ever wondered about your breast health? BreastHealth UK's BreastCheck can help. It can provide you with an in-depth profile of your current and long term breast health and how best to stay alert.

What is included

In the 20 minutes consultation you will get:

- a breast cancer risk analysis based on life style and family risk
- a clinical Breast Examination with a nurse
- tuition to become breast aware and learn how to self examine
- a personalised breast screening programme

Why choose BreastCheck?

BreastCheck provides a reliable overview of your current and future breast health. You will learn to stay alert to changes in your breast and optimise the chance of identifying abnormalities as soon as possible.

Where can I have BreastCheck?

BreastCheck may be available in an in-company clinic, near to work clinic or in a private hospital close to home or work.

Why do I need these tests?

This test gives an in-depth understanding of your breast health, a personalised breast screening programme and an understanding of when and how to check for changes that may lead to earlier detection and less treatment including surgery.

When do I get my results?

Your results will be explained to you during the consultation and you will receive a written report and personalised breast screening programme within 5 days of the consultation.

Know the facts and the risks

It is better to check for breast health problems before any symptoms arise. Diagnosing breast cancer at an early stage means better quality of life and less treatment, including surgery. BreastCheck puts you in control of your own breast health.

- 90% of all breast cancers are identified by women themselves
- 1 in 9 women will get breast cancer in their life time
- By 2020 the number will be 1 in 7
- Every year more than 45,000 women and 400 men are diagnosed with breast cancer in the UK alone
